

Subject: I've been working on something big...

Hi (First Name),

For the past few weeks, I've been working with a friend on something that's going to help a lot of people achieve the success they've been looking for.

I think it'll help you too.

It's all about highly successful athletes, entrepreneurs, business people, and coaches. It's about people that start multiple businesses, break records, and surpass even their wildest dreams.

People usually think those ultra-successful types are just lucky, have good connections or were born with a rare talent.

But the truth is they're normal people just like you. The difference is they've followed a formula of 21 critical steps.

Most people want more out of life -- higher incomes, bigger companies, better health, and improved fitness. But they never achieve those dreams. Why? Because life gets in the way or they just don't believe they can achieve more.

They want the look from the latest fitness magazine, but they don't change their routine to achieve it. They want to be the fastest-growing company in their industry or community, yet they're constantly beat out by competitors.

What do you need to do to be different? How can you achieve your dreams?

You might feel like you're relatively healthy and have a comfortable life financially. Be careful -- this self-talk is actually an early indicator that you've decided to settle for less than you deserve.

Is where you are now where you truly want to be? Do you feel destined for more? Or have you settled for less?

What would happen if you achieved your dreams? How would your family, your business and your community change? Look at Bill & Melinda Gates -- what if they had stopped? This is your opportunity to learn how successful people made their dreams a reality.
